East County motorists cited

Law requires motorists to carry evidence that they are covered by insurance, reminded California Highway Patrol Commander, Don Watkins, Captain in charge of the east county element of San Diego County's traffic control responsibility.

"Of the drivers we stop, 30% of the total are uninsured," he said. "When our records show that 1,229 motorists could not produce insurance evidence, in February, we must assume that the uninsured total is immense since we contact only a small percentage of those using the highways."

"All that is required is the name of the insurance firm and the number listed on the policy written on a scrap of paper."

Other stops made in the east county by CHP during February were: 818 speeders, including 2 Padres (one, 90 mph and the other 100 mph), but their names were not available.

Of the 818, 123 were exceeding the speed limit in the 65 mph zone; 461 exceeding the 55 mph limit, and the others exceeded various signed limits. 21 truck drivers were among the speeders.

914 persons were cited for failure to buckle-up and 16 had failed to have infants in safety seats.

In Lemon Grove, where the traffic squadron is made up of a select group of sheriff's deputies with Sheriff's Deputy Sergeants sitting atop the corps, 17 drivers were jailed for driving under the influence; 256 were speeding; 51 failed to be buckled-up; and 113 carried no evidence of insurance.

Year closes for Miss Lemon Grove

The current Miss Lemon Grove, Kassandra Roberts, will crown a new winner during the annual Miss Lemon Grove Pageant to be held Saturday, March 11, in the auditorium of Lemon Grove Middle School on School Lane.

The pageant, sponsored by the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce, the Lemon Grove Rotary Club, the Lemon Grove Kiwanis Club, and the City of Lemon Grove, will begin at 7 p.m. and will feature sportswear and formal attire competitions. No admission will be charged.

Roberts, a native of Lemon Grove, has enthusiastically represented the community during her 1988-89 reign. As a youngster, she had always dreamed of "being the pretty girl in the parade."

She said that she has enjoyed the experience of her reign, and that she has done her best to be a good example for others, and to maintain the high moral character expected of Miss Lemon Grove.

Roberts attributes much of her success to her mother, Carrol Roberts, who has provided her inspiration.

Drought fears worsen

California's water picture remains dominated by drought, according to the Department of Water Resources' first 1989 bulletin on water conditions.

Extended midwinter dryness has worsened the water supply outlook, the report says. The next two months will determine whether there will be enough water, or whether California will have its first three-year critically dry spell of this century.

The report, "Water Conditions in California," is published monthly, February through May and summarizes precipitation, snowpack, reservoir storage, and other indicators of the water situation.

Highlights of the February report:

Precipitation is 3/4 of average statewide.

Reservoir storage is 65 percent of average statewide.

Runoff to date is well below average in all areas, ranging from less than 20 percent on the Central Coast and San Francisco Bay Area to 50 percent on the North Coast. Statewide average is 45 percent of normal.

The snowpack is about 90 percent of average for February 1.

Runoff of snowmelt is forecast at 65 percent of average on major streams.

Spring playground program announced

Children 7 thru 12 years of age can give parents and break and spend Spring Vacation with the Lemon Grove Recreation Department's Spring Playground Program. The program will run Monday, March 20, through Friday, March 24, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

The sites will be Lemon Grove Park, Berry Street Park, and the Lemon Grove Recreation Center. Each site will be staffed by two trained recreation leaders. They will provide games, arts & crafts, and plan a party at the end of the week.

No registration is required, just come down and enjoy a week of activities.

Honig claims lottery funds replace state support

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Bill Honig, has released the annual report on the California lottery which shows lottery funds once again being used to replace state support for kindergarten through grade twelve education. Honig said, "I had three concerns about the lottery as did many other educators, before it was established. Unfortunately, these fears have proven to be well-founded.

"In these tight budget times, lottery funds have replaced state support for our schools. In addition, the public has erroneously assumed that the lottery would solve all of K-12 education's funding problems. However, lottery funds are only about 3.5 percent of the total budget for education; it is a minor funding source 'that cannot be expected to provide major improvements in K-12 education.

"Also, the districts that can least afford it have put most of their lottery funds into long-term commitments. They are locking themselves into expenditure levels that cannot be sustained by a volatile funding source such as the lottery."

Honig continued,"Proposition 98, passed by California's voters in November, should alleviate some of the concerns generated by the lottery. Proposition 98 will provide our schools with a guaranteed level of funding that they have not had in the past."

The State Department of Education submitted its Report on Lottery Revenues and Expenditures for K-12 Education in 1987-88 and 1988-89 to the Legislature, as required by the 1987 Budget Act. The report illustrates that per pupil expenditures have not kept pace with inflation even when lottery funds are included. From 1986-87, expenditures per student, including lottery, dropped $46 per student in terms of 1988-89 constant dollars.

The erosion in K-12 funding continued from 1987-88 to 1988-89 when expenditures per pupil dropped an additional $11 in terms of 1988-89 constant dollars. The projections for 1989-90 anticipate a further decline of $58 from the 1988-89 year. Data from the 841 districts included in the Department of Education's study show that in 1988 approximately 60 percent of lottery funds went to employee salaries and benefits; 14 percent went for capital outlay, including equipment and maintenance; almost 13 percent went for books and supplies; and the remainder went to other categories.

For more information, contact Patrick Chladek at (916) 322-6029. For a copy of the report, contact the Public Relations Office at (916) 322-2008.

Spring Valley Lions donate costume

The Spring Valley Lions Club was presented last week with McGruff's "Crimebiter Award" by Lt. Lynne Ziegler of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Dept.

The framed plaque was given to the club in appreciation for the purchase of the department's McGruff costume, which is often worn by a crime prevention specialist during educational programs for the East County's younger students. The cost of the costume totalled more than $500.

The McGruff "Take a Bite Out of Crime" campaign is nationwide, and the figure of McGruff is instantly recognizable to 90% of America's children, according to Jack Miller, one of the crime prevention specialists who will don the costume of the popular law enforcement hero.

America's Top Dog will appear in the Lemon Grove Old Time Days Parade May 13, Miller said.

Prior to the Lion's Club contribution, he said, the Sheriff's Dept. borrowed the costume owned by the La Mesa Police Dept.

Car theft suspects nabbed

If you drive a Toyota, lock it up! Of every five stolen vehicles, one of them is a Toyota, according to Detective Bruce Fulton of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Substation Fulton added that auto thefts are on the rise, and that weekend visitors to the Spring Valley Swapmeet frequently become victims of auto thieves.

"It's a plague. Every weekend we have at least one stolen vehicle reported from the swapmeet parking lot. Sometimes as many as six," Fulton said.

Larry Barber Short, 21, a transient, was arrested Sunday, March 5, at 5:10 p.m., driving a stolen 1980 Toyota pick-up truck, shortly after the theft was reported.

The arrest was made without incident by Sheriff's Deputy Mike Marlow on the 1200 block of Sweetwater Road in Spring Valley.

According to the deputy's report, the suspect stated, "I just borrowed this truck from a guy at the swapmeet. Don't arrest me, I just got out of jail for car theft."

Marlow then arrested Short for car theft.

Another auto was recovered Friday, March 3, when Deputy Lorraine Englemon arrested Robert Dale Hester, no address, on the 7700 block of Alton Drive in Lemon Grove.

Englemon observed a blue 1976 Toyota Corona station wagon parked in the Lemon Grove Park parking lot. The suspect appeared furtive, and Englemon, suspicion aroused, requested vehicle information to be radioed as she followed the suspect to the Alton Drive residence, where confirmation of the car's stolen status was received. She then arrested Hester for auto theft at 10:25 a.m., according to her report.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

The Dr. Martin Luther King squabble won't go away.

A similar feud developed after the death of the San Diego Union's distinguished sports editor, Jack Murphy, adversaries formed when it was decided to name the San Diego Stadium in his honor.

He had been responsible for bringing the stadium into being. And with it, big-time sports evolved.

Murphy, as King, was highly respected and still revered. But the fracas that followed Murphy's death polarized the public.

Finally, a public vote was taken and the appelation became San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium.

Jack Murphy was one of the most popular sports writers in the nation. We were pleased to be among those who called him a friend.

He was a shy man who saved his words for the typewriter. His many awards were proof of his ability. He was the strong, silent man in most every group. He backed away from public adulation.

We think that Jack Murphy would be thoroughly embarrassed by the fighting that preceded the public's decision to add his name to the Stadium, fitting though it may have been.

He was the consummate columnist and his readers got great joy through his word pictures.

There is a bust of Murphy, fittingly near the press entrance to the Stadium. He might have even given approbation to the bust if one of his great loves--his dogs--were cast beneath him, looking up at him.

But sports writers have trouble with the name. Many writers call it the "Jack Murphy Stadium." Some call it the "San Diego Stadium," and some get fingers tangled up as they write "San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium."

There is a similarity between Murphy and Dr. King. Both died in productive years of their lives--Murphy of cancer, and King by gunshot wound. Both have followers who revere them. The untimely deaths of each created a determination that his contribution should long be remembered.

In the case of Jack Murphy, we believe a cast of a bronze dog looking up lovingly at him would complete the telling of the Murphy story.

To commemorate the sorrow that came with the untimely death of Dr. Martin Luther King, we suggest a bronze statue of him on the lawn of one of the county's many cemeteries.

Such a locale would remind those who come in sorrow for the personal loss of their loved one, will be reminded that there stands one whose loss is shared by all races.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

"Time sure flies when you're having fun." It's hard to believe that I was starting my fourth year writing From Where I Sit for the Lemon Grove Review and Spring Valley Bulletin. I have enjoyed sharing a bit of my life and experiences with others by way of the column.

When my good friend of over 20 years, Max Goodwin, turned the reins of the newspapers over to the new owner, Peter Kaufman, I was not sure my column would be a part of the new format. The date of the first new publication, February 23, was fast approaching and I had not been notified as to my status with the new publisher.

I announced my uncertain future to my Thursday Creative Writing Class. One of my favorite classmates, Arn Shein, suggested that I write the owner a letter of introduction.

Immediately after school that day I started such a letter. I already had the new owner's name, address, and salutation on my word processor screen when the phone rang.

"This is Peter Kaufman of the new Lemon Grove Review. I have already edited your next week's column and really liked it. We have decided to continue publishing From Where I Sit in our papers, so keep 'em coming."

That phone call "made my day", (an answer to many prayers). I was now on "cloud nine."

The first all new issue of the Lemon Grove Review and Spring Valley Bulletin 'hit the streets' on Friday, February 24. I was elated after Mr. Kaufman's phone call, but when I saw the 'new look' of our newspaper, it made me proud to be associated with such a fine publication.

Take Five

by John E. Wirges

Despite what may sound like a conflict in terms, in light of the slings and arrows of outrage aimed in his direction, Steve Garvey is a stand up guy. No pun intended.

He faces life head on, fully aware of the blessings and pitfalls that are part of our adventure on this mortal coil. He looks the world straight in the eye, and he answers all challenges with honesty and committed effort.

Garvey is the kind of man kids adore, men admire, and women day-dream about. He has time for all who cross his path, sharing the moment to enjoy the view and smell the roses.

In his brightest moments as a superstar, Steven Patrick Garvey always walked slowly through the teems of grandmas and grandpas and bubbling teens and all those in between, signing autographs, shaking hands, and posing for pictures. He took the time to be a friend.

He showed the way to less public minded players by his example and ended up building a bond between players and fans that became the envy of the league.

He is much respected, well-liked and honestly admired. Aye, there's the rub. When we deem someone near perfect, we tend to expect perfection.

Garvey is a warm and caring person, full of the same wants, desires, and fears and needs as any human being. He is worldly wise, yet naive enough to believe his honest answers to questions of this personal life will be treated with respect by modern media mercenaries.

The sportswriters, radio and TV folks he is used to, generally respect privacy on request. It is a quality of respect unknown to the headline hunting, pushy, newsy types.

It seems ironic that Garvey's problems tumbled along at the same time a Senate sub-committee was reviewing the nomination of John Tower. Ted Kennedy voted no on accepting Tower's nomination because Tower is accused of enjoying female companionship and strong spirits.

Shades of Chappaquiddick, Teddy voted against girls and strong spirits. It's a wonder the entire hearing room didn't explode in laughter.

Unlike Teddy, Garvey faces up to his responsibilities. He is a mature, intelligent, caring individual who, until his marriage last week to the former Candace Thomas, was considered one of the most eligible bachelors in Southern California.

He has squired a number of beautiful women to one social event or another during his bachelorhood, and he and his date were always admired for their charm and style.

Steve Garvey is a class act. In this day of enlightened, liberated social behavior, Garvey's friendship with a number of attractive women during his bachelor "daze" does nothing to diminish his credibility.

Garvey reportedly fathered a child by one old flame and may have impregnated another former fiancée. He says he'll take full responsibility for his actions if the accusations prove correct.

It takes honesty and character to make such a public commitment. But then honesty and integrity are part of Garvey's way of life. Like I said, he's a stand up guy.

A cause for celebration

by Willie L. Brown, Jr., Speaker of the Assembly

Throughout the last 50 years, women have made tremendous strides in their fight to be recognized as valuable and contributing members of our society.

Women have played an important part in every aspect of our culture. They have been mothers, homemakers, nurses, farmers and major members of our workforce.

Many of us remember the World War II picture of "Rosie in the Riveter" -- the woman who left her household to work in the factories while the men fought. Without the help of these women, war-time manufacturing might have come to a halt.

It is for these reasons that, in 1987, a Joint Resolution of the U.S. Congress declared March to be National Women's History Month. The theme for the 1989 observance is "Heritage of Strength and Vision," which will emphasize women in history who have exhibited personal strength or have had the vision to further women's causes through new accomplishments.

As we observe this event, it is important that we remember the contributions women have made to this country, and that we recognize their increasing influence in this nation's leadership. Women have begun to play a major role in the worlds of business and politics, and we must support and encourage this progress.

Eighteen women are members of the California Legislature. As a strong supporter of new opportunities for women, I have appointed four women as chairpersons of major committees in the Assembly, and three women hold leadership positions in the Assembly Democratic Caucus.

Since my election to the Assembly in 1964, I have tried to demonstrate my support for women's rights through my legislation.

For example, I worked with Assemblywoman Maxine Waters to ensure the passage of a bill to encourage the state to award a share of its business contracts to women-owned firms. I have been a strong supporter of legislation giving women the right to control their own bodies, as well as legislation on child care, education and a variety of other issues that protect and enhance the rights of women.

But we must not wait until March each year to celebrate women's place in our history and culture. We must continue our recognition of women's contributions and accomplishments throughout the year and must dedicate ourselves to the fight for equal opportunities and rights for women.

I ask everyone to join me in observing Women's History Month and in commemorating the tremendous role women have played in the development of our state and our nation.

So what's new. . .

Recent study finds most teenagers' diets are deficient

Most teenagers fall short on their Recommended Dietary Allowances for calcium, iron and energy, according to the California Dietetic Association.

"Those findings were recently substantiated in a new study reported in the Journal of Nutrition Education," said Linda Dahl, registered dietitian and CDA president.

Dahl cited several risks adolescents take if nutrition is not a priority. "A nutrition-deficient diet during the adolescent years can severely restrict a child's development," Dahl cautioned. Dahl added that teens consuming fewer than four servings of dairy foods per day are probably not getting enough calcium -- which aids in muscle and skeletal development -- in their diets. Iron is especially vital to teenage athletes, who are at increased risk for iron deficiency due to red blood cell destruction, according to Dahl.

Dahl said a balanced diet including each of the updated four food groups of lowfat milk and dairy foods, lean meat and meat alternates, raw or lightly cooked vegetables and fruits, and whole grain breads and cereals, will meet most teens' calcium, iron and energy needs.

Recommended for teens are four servings of milk and dairy foods, two servings of lean meat or meat alternates, and four servings each of vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals.

"Fortunately for teens, eating a balanced diet is not as difficult as studying calculus," Dahl said. "All it takes is a little time to sit down and decide which are the best choices."

"Dairy foods are the best natural source of calcium in the diet and there are a wide variety of low and nonfat products available for teens who are concerned about their weight," Dahl said. Milk, cottage and other cheeses and yogurt all come in low or nonfat versions. "Breakfast cereals, especially iron-fortified, are good sources of iron," Dahl said. "As are all lean red meats, cooked salmon and even cooked chicken." Dahl said energy requirements for the vast majority of teens could be met by eating three square meals a day.

"Just include at least one dairy serving at each meal, and one serving of an iron-rich food twice a day," Dahl said.

Job fairs for older persons

The Area Agency on Aging and the Employment Development Department (EDD) State Job Service will be co-sponsoring seven job fairs for older persons during the week of March 13-17.

This is an opportunity for those who desire employment assistance to talk to experts who can help them find a job, make a job change, or upgrade their skills. All older persons with job related concerns will be welcome. Emphasis will be given to those age 55 and over who may be experiencing age-related barriers to employment. The fairs are free.

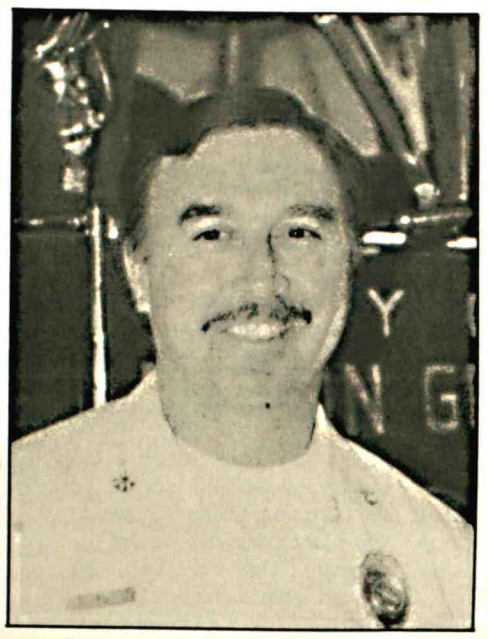

Call Senior Information at 560-2500 for more information and a complete listing of locations, dates and times.

Hayman stresses education, safety

He's not one to ring his own bells; to sound his own siren, but Edgar J. Hayman, 43, is a well-educated man who is dedicated to, and enthusiastic about, his work and his co-workers.

Ed Hayman is Lemon Grove's Assistant Fire Chief, Fire Marshall, and also serves as the fire department's training officer. He joined the department full-time in 1969, after serving several years as a reservist.

As a resident of Lemon Grove since infancy, he is an active and popular member of the community. He is married to Jan, a native Lemon Grover, and they have two children, Hilary, age 11, and Derek, age 9.

He was, he said, coerced into joining the volunteer reserve firefighters in 1964, soon after high school graduation, by friends who enjoyed the challenges and comraderie of participating in the volunteer program.

Hayman was hooked. Except for a "two year vacation with the Marines" he has diligently proceeded up the ladder to his present post, to which he was appointed a year ago, when his qualifications bested those of nearly thirty applicants and nine other final candidates.

Much of Hayman's responsibility concerns public education, particularly in regard to prevention. As Fire Marshall, he inspects businesses weekly. One-quarter of the year he may focus on gas stations; another quarter of the year he'll emphasize restaurant inspections. "We check for the appropriate number of safety exits, number and type of fire extinguishers, sprinkler systems, where needed, illegal extension cords, and clearly visible address numbers, for instance," Hayman stated.

Address numbers?

"If you have a fire, we're going to find that pretty easily, we can locate the smoke; but if you have a heart attack, we want to find you quickly, and people with heart attacks don't [emit] smoke. A few extra minutes' delay could have a better idea how best to approach that fire, and where we need to protect ourselves when we fight it," Hayman explained.

Another of his responsibilities is in conjunction with the City's planning and building departments, reviewing construction plans prior to the building phase.

"We look for adequate exits, smoke detectors, whether existing fire hydrants are close enough, or if an additional hydrant is required. Certain types of occupancies require sprinkler systems; is the plan for a structure of three stories or more?" Hayman clarified, adding," I have an obligation to preserve the safety of the business people and residents. I take pride in what I do."

He's also fired up about public awareness."More than a thousand people attended the department's last open house. We get to know the citizens, they get to know us, be imperative to you," he said, adding that a visible address is as important on a residence as it is on a commercial structure.

"Most merchants are compliant with our inspection requirements, and they know the value of our fire prevention service."

In addition, the inspections provide an opportunity to become familiar with the interior of the businesses, to know where hazardous points may be, in the event of a blaze at that location. "We we distribute printed materials about fire prevention, earthquake preparedness and safety, and answer thousands of questions."

And he's pleased with the School District's willingness in scheduling school safety programs.

"Ask any kid who's grown up in Lemon Grove, and in high school or younger, what he or she would do if their clothes catch fire. That kid will respond with "Stop, Drop and Roll." Or ask, "What's in your home that protects you night and day?" They'll answer, "Smoke detectors."

"We've gotten our point across," said Hayman.

Department employees also teach kids "EDITH," an acronym for Exit Drills In The Home, as well as instructing first-aid and CPR techniques to school nurses and private citizens, specifically those who care for others in ill health or who are frail.

"We participate with the schools in earthquake preparedness, and assist with the school drills," Hayman said.

Education. Preparedness. Awareness. That's Ed Hayman's focus; to provide for each of us additional safety, better health and life protection, and the knowledge to better assist one another.

Concluding a month of American History studies, Golden Avenue School third-grade students presented a history program Friday morning to the lower grades and a number of parents.

Singing, dancing, verse recital and a play about the creation of Old Glory were conducted under the direction of teachers Mrs. Conrad and Mrs. Fowler.

Living history day at Griffen Park

Mt. Helix Council PTA, the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District, and Boosters of Old Town will present "Living History Day" on Saturday, March 11, at Harry Griffen Park from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The park will come alive with California history. The Boosters of Old Town will be represented by the military, artisan, and townspeople groups from the late 1840's. There will be crafts for the children to make, conversations about the events of the day, demonstrations by horsemen, and all will be dressed in authentic period costumes.

There will be displays from La Mesa-Spring Valley schools and folk dance groups, and school bands will perform. A food booth will be provided by Grossmont High School Key Club and Mt. Helix Council P.T.A.

This is a day designed to become a family affair for the communities of La Mesa and Spring Valley. What a wonderful way to bring history alive and give it meaning to students and their families.

Distinguished librarians reside in Spring Valley

The large, impressive stained-glass window in the Dorothy Drake wing of Denison Library at Scripps College in Claremont was presented to the college in honor of Spring Valley resident, Dorothy Drake. In fact, the library wing is named for Dorothy Drake, who served with great distinction at Scripps College for many years.

The highly-artistic window, designed by Douglas McClellan, was a gift of the Scripps College senior class of 1965 and 1966.

Now a resident at Mount Miguel Covenant Village, a retirement community in Spring Valley owned by the Evangelical Covenant Church, Ms. Drake shares an apartment residence with another highly acclaimed professional in the field of library science, Clara Breed.

Ms. Breed headed the San Diego city library system for 25 years. It's a good bet that the library at Mount Miguel Covenant Village is in good order!

Get in shape – with no sweat

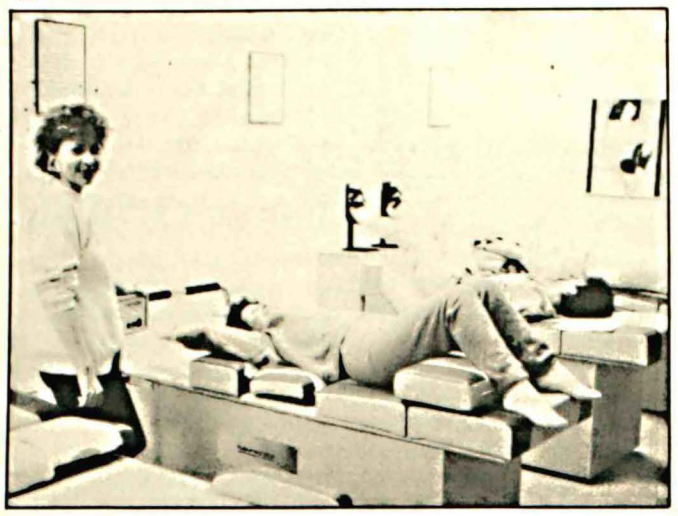

If you thought you were too old to exercise or just don't like the hassle of bouncing, lifting weights, sweating, changing clothes, and the inconvenience of showering after each workout. Then, there is now an alternative for you! The "Futureshape at the Grove" exercise system offers a truly revolutionary way to gently tone and firm the entire body, without the muscle strain and fatigue that accompanies traditional types of exercise. Through a unique combination of physical and isometric high repetition movements, our six individual machines firm, tone and reduce different areas of the body. The increased oxygen supply and improved circulation help to break down stubborn cellulite. Clients see results almost immediately with this gentle, effective system.

The salon has only been open a few weeks but already its clients have seen results. "One of our first clients has lost 7 inches in just 1 1/2 weeks and she says she feels great," said Ms. Rhonda Jewel, manager of the new salon located at the Marketplace at The Grove.

The salon also offers a weight loss program, body wraps, and soon will offer facials. "Now you don't have to grow old gracefully," said Jewel. Ms. Jewel has previously worked as a body technician at the "Golden Door" and "La Costa" spas. She is also a licensed esthetician (a specialist in face and skin care.)

"Most clients like the individual attention and atmosphere of the salon," said Ms. Lisa Friedman. "The results from the body wraps are amazing. Our clients lose over 9 inches in one session and combining that great start with a regular exercise program using our "no sweat" toning equipment will give them 10 to 20 inches of permanent weight loss in just a few more weeks." Lisa, an exercise technician at the salon, is working on a masters degree in weight loss counseling at San Diego State University.

"If you want to trim down, not bulk up and prefer a salon environment instead of a gym, then this may be the alternative you've been seeking," said Jewel.

Pinery celebrates Arbor Day with free Italian Stone Pine trees

Pinery Tree Farms will be giving away 1000's of 2'-3' Italian Stone Pines to celebrate Arbor Day. Free trees can be picked up Saturday, March 11, starting at 8 a.m. until trees are gone. Trees will be available at two locations: in Escondido, Via Rancho Parkway across from North County Fair Mall, and in El Cajon, on the corner of Pepper and Graves. Three trees will be available per family.

The first Arbor Day in the U.S. was celebrated in 1872 in Nebraska. By that time settlers had chopped down most of the trees in that state either for building their homes or for firewood. Still other trees had to be destroyed to clear land for farming. A Nebraska newspaperman, J. Sterling Morton, came up with the idea of Arbor Day as a method of correcting this sorry situation. The suggestion gained favor as he launched his "Campaign for Tree Planting."

Assessor questions homeowners' property tax exemption by mail

Approximately 370,000 Homeowners' Exemption Notices are being mailed to San Diego County homeowners who have claimed exemption in the past year, said County Assessor Gregory Smith.

Exemption amounts to $7,000 off assessed value of a homeowner's principal place of residence, resulting in a tax savings of approximately $70 per year.

In San Diego County, this amounts to a total of $28 million in homeowners' property tax exemptions annually.

Once a homeowner's claim is filed and there is no change in ownership or occupancy status, the exemption will be continued automatically. However, if the taxpayer is no longer the owner-occupant of the residence on March 1, 1989, or if the printed information on the claim form is incorrect, the notice should be returned to the Assessor's Office .

Property owners who have questions about their eligibility for this exemption program should call the Assessor's Office directly at (619) 531-5772.

Indoor soccer season winding up

The action was hot in the Lemon Grove Recreation Department's indoor soccer program. The season is closing for 5 to 11 year olds who took part in the winter program, which stressed sportsmanship, teamwork and fun. For the last nine Saturdays over 15 teams came to the Lemon Grove Recreation Center gymnasium to play indoor soccer.

NABF super bantamweight crown won by Spring Valley boxer, Jesus Salud

Jesus Salud, 25, a native of the Philippines, now living on Calavo Dr. in Spring Valley, has become the new North America Boxing Federation Super Bantamweight champion.

Salud, with a 26-3 record, knocked out Romero Adams (21-4) of Houston 57 seconds into the second round of a match February 28 at the Forum in Inglewood.

"I feel great," he said this week, "I didn't get hurt in the Forum fight and I intend to go up the boxing ladder until I have the world crown."

Salud dropped Adames with a right hook that showed exceptional power. It travelled about 10 inches to his opponent's head. Salud claimed he was hit only once, and that was a straight right to the head. "It shook me, but I can take a lot like that without losing."

As a youth, Salud moved to Hawaii with his parents, where he lived for 19 years.

In Hawaii, he became active in "Biddy" boxing, which he says is a boxing program for kids operated by the Hawaiian Police League.

"My grandfather and uncle were boxers. I guess that's why I took to it," he said.

In Hawaii, he met his wife, Julia. They married and have one son. He gained considerable fame as a boxer in Hawaii through radio exposure. He became so popular that he got a job as an auto salesman and became one of the leading salespersons in the field.

The Salud family came to the mainland late last year and settled in San Diego County. Jesus had his mind set on fighting--and reaching for the top of his profession. His trainer, Wes Wambold, agrees with his fighter's determination.

His wife, Julia, a volunteer in a child's hearing center in the South Bay area, said that her man is a determined person. "He wants to be at the top of anything he does," she said. "I admire that."

Salud discussed his immediate future at a recent press conference. "I'm not content with just being part the way up. I intend to go on top."

"The view is better when you're at the top," he said. Trainer Wambold said Salud's prospects are very good.

The San Diego Sockers 3rd annual Big Buddy Night is expected to draw more than 5,000, via tickets provided by local business firms to disadvantaged socker fans. The tickets were made available to local San Diego business firms for $3 a ticket, and are donated to local charities and community service groups.

The game will be played Wednesday, March 22 at the San Diego Sports Arena with the Socks facing the Wichita Wings, starting at 7:35 p.m. According to Randy Bernstein, Socker's executive, the project has drawn 5,000 recipients the past 2 years, but hopes for more this year.

In a trade executed at the League meetings during the MISL All-Star week in Dallas, the San Diego Sockers acquired midfielder Waad Hirmez in a trade with the Los Angeles Lazers for forward Poli Garcia.

Prior to the trade, Hirmez had scored 11 goals and 9 assists for 20 points with the Lazers, far from his career high of 30 goals and 23 assists set last year with the Sockers.

Poli Garcia, who had been playing out of his normal forward position for most of the year, had only scored one goal and 4 assists in his 21 games with San Diego.

"I think we definitely pulled off the better half of this trade," said Sockers' head coach, Ron Newman. "Waady knows our system, can play all three of our field positions equally well, and will get that large adrenaline boost coming back home to play in front of our fans."

In his first 3 games back with the Sockers, Hirmez scored 6 goals and 1 assist. His totals include a hat trick against the Lazers in his first game with the Sockers, one goal and one assist against the Sidekicks, and two goals against the Lazers in a second meeting.

The cost of vandalism

Broken window, slashed tires and graffiti--These acts of vandalism are most frequently reported in Lemon Grove. Vehicles are a common target of vandalism.

Recently, sixth-graders at Lemon Grove Middle School learned that vandalism goes beyond destruction of property, but hurts human beings as well.

"Most youngsters view vandalism as a harmless prank. They don't consider the after effects of their actions," said Crime Prevention Specialist, Sally Arguilez.

Peer pressure and boredom are the most common reasons for vandalism among youth.

Teacher Gloria Campbell's group recalled the tragedy of the young man who suffered brain damage when teenaged youths dropped a concrete block from a freeway offramp into his vehicle windshield, and the high school girl injured when someone threw a two-by-four at her head while she was riding a motorcycle.

The students learned to be observant and how to report vandalism to the authorities. They also learned about the 9-1-1 emergency system.

"Repairing property means there's less money for a field trip, sports equipment, or supplies for your art class. It may mean that a store closes because the costs of vandalism/shoplifting drive them out of business. When you're ready to buy a new car and start job-hunting, that's one less place that will have a job for you. It also means that you have to pay more money for items because the cost of crime is passed on to the buyer."

Anti-vandalism programs are available through the Sheriff's crime prevention unit. Call 441-4037 if you are interested in more information.
